SQL Cheat Sheet: Views, Stored Procedures and Transactions

Views

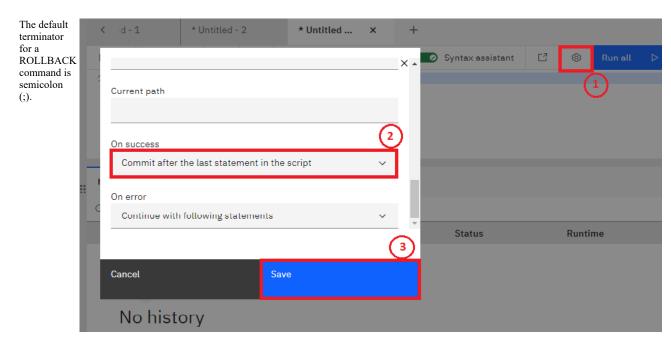

| Topic | Syntax | Description | Example | | | |
|---|---|---|---|--|--|--|
| Create View | CREATE VIEW view_name AS SELECT column1, column2, FROM table_name WHERE condition; | A CREATE VIEW is an alternative way of representing data that exists in one or more tables. | CREATE VIEW EMPSALARY AS SELECT EMP_ID, F_NAME, L_NAME, B_DATE, SEX, SALARY FROM EMPLOYEES; | | | |
| Update a View | CREATE OR REPLACE VIEW view_name AS SELECT column1, column2, FROM table_name WHERE condition; | The create or replace VIEW command updates a view. | CREATE OR REPLACE VIEW EMPSALARY AS SELECT EMP_ID, F_NAME, L_NAME, B_DATE, SEX, JOB_TITLE, MIN_SALARY, MAX_SALARY FROM EMPLOYEES, JOBS WHERE EMPLOYEES.JOB_ID = JOBS.JOB_IDENT; | | | |
| Drop a View | DROP VIEW view_name; | Use the DROP VIEW statement to remove a view from the database. | DROP VIEW EMPSALARY; | | | |
| Stored Procedures in IBM Db2 using SQL | | | | | | |
| | #SET TERMINATOR @ CREATE PROCEDURE | A stored procedure is a prepared SQL code that you can save, so the code can be reused over and over again. | #SET TERMINATOR @ CREATE PROCEDURE RETRIEVE_ALL | | | |
| | | | LANGUAGE SQL READS SQL DATA | | | |
| | PROCEDURE_NAME LANGUAGE | | DYNAMIC RESULT SETS 1 BEGIN | | | |
| Stored Procedures | BEGIN END @ | The default terminator for a stored procedure is semicolon(;). To set a different terminator we use SET TERMINATOR clause followed by the terminator such as '@'. | DECLARE C1 CURSOR WITH RETURN FOR | | | |
| | | | SELECT * FROM PETSALE; | | | |
| | | | OPEN C1; | | | |
| | | | END @ | | | |
| Stored Procedures in MySQL using phpMyAdmin | | | | | | |
| | DELIMITER // | A stored procedure is a prepared SQL code that | DELIMITER // | | | |
| | CREATE PROCEDURE PROCEDURE_NAME | you can save, so the code can be reused over and | CREATE PROCEDURE RETRIEVE_ALL() | | | |
| Stored | BEGIN | over again. | BEGIN | | | |
| Procedures | END // | semicolon (;). To set a different terminator we use DELIMITER clause followed by the terminator such as $$ or // | SELECT * FROM PETSALE; | | | |
| | DELIMITER; | | END // | | | |
| | | | DELIMITER; | | | |

T

the database.

| Transactions with Db2 | | | | |
|----------------------------|---|--|--|--|
| Commit COMMIT; command | A COMMIT command is used to persist the changes in the database. The default terminator for a COMMIT command is semicolon (;). | CREATE TABLE employee(ID INT, Name VARCHAR(20), City VARCHAR(20), Salary INT, Age INT); INSERT INTO employee(ID, Name, City, Salary, Age) VALUES(1, 'Priyanka pal', 'Nasik', 36000, 21), (2, 'Riya chowdary', 'Barana salana sa | | |
| Rollback ROLLBACK; command | A ROLLBACK command is used to rollback the transactions which are not saved in | As auto-commit is enabled by default, all transactions will be committed. We need to disable this option to see how rollback works. For db2, we have to disable auto-commit manually. Click the gear icon located on the right side of the SQL Assistant window. Next, select the "On Success" drop-down and choose "commit after the last statement in the script" Remember t save your changes! | | |

DELIMITER;

CREATE TABLE employee(ID INT, Name VARCHAR(20), City VARCHAR(20), Salary INT,

INSERT INTO employee VALUES (3, 'Swetha Tiwari', 'Kanpur', 38000, 38);
SELECT *FROM employee;
ROLLBACK;
SELECT *FROM employee;

Transactions with MySQL

Age INT); A COMMIT command is used to persist the changes in $_{\sf START}$ TRANSACTION; COMMIT; the database. Commit INSERT INTO employee(ID, Name, City, Salary,
Age) VALUES(1, 'Priyanka pal', 'Nasik',
36000, 21), (2, 'Riya chowdary', 'Bangalor', command The default terminator for a COMMIT command is semicolon (;). 82000, 29); SELECT *FROM employee; COMMIT; As auto-commit is enabled by default, all transactions will be committed. We need to disable this option to see how rollback works. A ROLLBACK command is used to rollback the For MySQL use the command "SET ROLLBACK; transactions which are not saved in the database. autocommit = 0;" Rollback command INSERT INTO employee VALUES (3, 'Swetha The default terminator for a ROLLBACK Tiwari', 'Kanpur', 38000, 38); command is semicolon (;). SELECT *FROM employee; ROLLBACK; SELECT *FROM employee;

Db2 Transactions using Stored Procedure

A COMMIT command is used to persist the changes in $\mbox{--\#SET}$ TERMINATOR $\mbox{@}$ CREATE PROCEDURE -#SET TERMINATOR @ Commit TRANSACTION_ROSE LANGUAGE SQL MODIFIES SQL command CREATE PROCEDURE PROCEDURE_NAME The default terminator for a COMMIT command BEGIN BEGIN is semicolon (;). COMMIT; DECLARE SQLCODE INTEGER DEFAULT 0; DECLARE retcode INTEGER DEFAULT 0: END DECLARE CONTINUE HANDLER FOR SQLEXCEPTION SET retcode = SQLCODE; UPDATE BankAccounts SET Balance = Balance-200 WHERE AccountName = 'Rose'; UPDATE BankAccounts SET Balance = Balance-300 WHERE AccountName = 'Rose'; IF retcode < 0 THEN ROLLBACK WORK; ELSE COMMIT WORK; END IF;

```
--#SET TERMINATOR @ CREATE PROCEDURE
                                                                                                                   TRANSACTION_ROSE LANGUAGE SQL MODIFIES SQL
                                                                                                                   DATA
                                                                                                                   BEGIN
                                                                                                                   DECLARE SQLCODE INTEGER DEFAULT 0;
                                                                                                                   DECLARE retcode INTEGER DEFAULT 0;
                 --#SET TERMINATOR @
                                                                                                                   DECLARE CONTINUE HANDLER FOR SQLEXCEPTION
                                                                                                                   SET retcode = SQLCODE;
                 CREATE PROCEDURE PROCEDURE_NAME
                                                                                                                   UPDATE BankAccounts
                 BEGIN
                                                                  A ROLLBACK command is used to rollback the
                                                                                                                   SET Balance = Balance-200
WHERE AccountName = 'Rose';
                                                                  transactions which are not saved in the database.
                ROLLBACK;
Rollback
command
                                                                                                                   UPDATE BankAccounts
                                                                  The default terminator for a ROLLBACK
                 COMMIT;
                                                                                                                   SET Balance = Balance-300
                                                                  command is semicolon (;).
                 END
                                                                                                                   WHERE AccountName = 'Rose';
                                                                                                                   IF retcode < 0 THEN
                                                                                                                   ROLLBACK WORK;
                                                                                                                   COMMIT WORK; END IF;
                                                                                                                   END
MySQL Transactions using Stored Procedure
                                                                                                                   DELIMITER //
                                                                                                                   CREATE PROCEDURE TRANSACTION_ROSE()
                                                                                                                   DECLARE EXIT HANDLER FOR SQLEXCEPTION
                DELIMITER //
                                                                                                                   BEGIN
                                                                                                                   ROLLBACK;
                 CREATE PROCEDURE PROCEDURE NAME
                                                                                                                   RESIGNAL;
                                                                  A COMMIT command is used to persist the changes in END;
                 BEGTN
                                                                  the database.
Commit
                                                                                                                   START TRANSACTION;
                 COMMIT;
                                                                                                                  UPDATE BankAccounts
SET Balance = Balance-200
command
                                                                  The default terminator for a COMMIT command
                 END //
                                                                  is semicolon (;).
                                                                                                                   WHERE AccountName =
                DELIMITER;
                                                                                                                   UPDATE BankAccounts
                                                                                                                   SET Balance = Balance-300
WHERE AccountName = 'Rose';
                                                                                                                   COMMIT;
                                                                                                                   END //
                                                                                                                   DELIMITER;
                                                                                                                   DELIMITER //
                                                                                                                   CREATE PROCEDURE TRANSACTION_ROSE()
                DELIMITER //
                                                                                                                   DECLARE EXIT HANDLER FOR SQLEXCEPTION
                 CREATE PROCEDURE PROCEDURE_NAME
                                                                                                                   ROLLBACK;
                                                                                                                   RESIGNAL;
                 BEGIN
                                                                  A ROLLBACK command is used to rollback the END;
                ROLLBACK;
                                                                  transactions which are not saved in the database.
Rollback
                                                                                                                   START TRANSACTION;
                                                                                                                   UPDATE BankAccounts
command
                 COMMIT;
                                                                  The default terminator for a ROLLBACK
                                                                                                                   SET Balance = Balance-200
                                                                  command is semicolon (;).
                                                                                                                   WHERE AccountName = 'Rose';
                 END //
                                                                                                                   UPDATE BankAccounts
                DELIMITER ;
                                                                                                                   SET Balance = Balance-300
                                                                                                                   WHERE AccountName = 'Rose';
                                                                                                                   COMMIT;
                                                                                                                   END //
                                                                                                                   DELIMITER;
```

END

Author(s)

D.M Naidu

Changelog

Date Version Changed by Change Description

2022-10-04 1.0 D.M.Naidu Initial Version